NOW SHOWING

Bobby Goes to the Movies

Bobby is excited about going to see the newest movie in town! He's gotta buy his ticket first and then he's gonna be getting tons of snacks 'cause it's a triple creature feature. Throughout the magazine you'll find pictures of all the stuff Bobby stuffed himself with. Each item has a price marked on it. When you find all eight items, go to page 35 and add up the total cost of Bobby's big day out.

Gather your snacks and watch Bobby's World weekday mornings and see new episodes on Saturdays!

One of my favorite jobs is deciding what time and which days to air all of our terrific shows. This fall we have an even bigger job than usual because we have so many cool new shows for you!

FOX KIDS is giving you the best way possible to start out your weekends. Just what you need, now that school has started! Check out the all-new "Ninja Turtles: The Next Mutation," only on Fridays and only on FOX KIDS. If you liked the Ninja Turtles movies, you're going to love this! So get ready to Friday, and see why FOX KIDS ROCKS KIDS!

LET'S TALK TURTLE!

TOTALLY FOX KIDS chief celebrity correspondent, Fox Huntley, managed to catch up with our celebrities in between scenes of their sure-fire live-action hit series on FOX KIDS—Ninja Turtles: The Next Mutation. He found our stars lounging by the pool at the swanky Beverly Shells Hotel. Fox, in this exclusive interview, really drew our elusive celebrities out of their...shells.

FOX: So you guys really ARE turtles.

Michelangelo: What were you expecting? Humans in suits?

Raphael: Yeah, I'm not a turtle, I just play one on TV. (all laugh)

FOX: Hey, I didn't mean to mock turtles. It's just that I thought, well...Anyway, what brought you from movies to TV?

Donatello: We felt turtles were being shown in a bad light since we left. We don't just lie about on rocks all day like some of those nature programs suggest. We want to make a change in turtle awareness.

FOX: I have a list of ninety-seven questions here, all of which I am not allowed to ask you as part of the pre-interview agreement, so let's switch gears and talk about the new series. What is it like being in front of the cameras?

Mike: It's awesome. I can't walk into a mall without a mob of autograph hounds!

FOX: Is this new series more challenging for you than the movies? And if so, in what ways?

Don: We are teenagers now and must deal with all that teenager stuff. We still live in a sewer, which is a far cry from the condo I actually live in! I feel, personally, that this new series has really forced me to stretch as an actor and work hard to capture all the nuance and subtext required of my part.

Raph: Yeah, Don is going to be on Circus of the Stars before any of us!

FOX: What about the new female character? How does she fit in?

Leonardo: Venus plays a Shinobi mystic who got separated in the ooze from the rest of us long ago. She has been raised and trained in China. She adds a new "mystical" interpretation to the show. To put it in a nutshell, this new series is sort of your typical action-adventure Zen shadow play, yet moralistic parable tale, with a dash of boys-meet-turtle...but without all the yucky stuff.

Mike: What he is trying to say is it's funny, exciting, and entertaining.

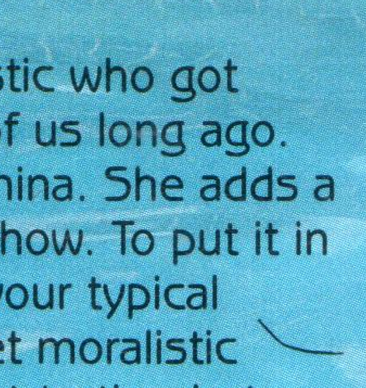

FOX: I see. Now, Venus, how did you get cast in the part of the only female Ninja?

Venus: I was doing a car wax commercial when I was spotted by the show's producers and asked to read for the part.

FOX: Have you studied acting a lot?

Venus: Yes, I got my training at the Galapagos Rep Theatre.

FOX: Rep is for Repertory?

Venus: No, reptile, silly!

FOX: Sorry, I just thought...So how do you like the name Venus de Milo?

Mike: At first she was pretty broken up about it! (laughs)

Venus: No, I think it represents Strength and Beauty. At least I'm not a chiseler like Michelangelo....

Mike: Hey!

Leonardo: Now, now. We are a team of skilled Ninjas; let's be civilized.

Raph: We're a bunch of actor reptiles who play skilled Ninjas, and besides, civilized is for humans.

FOX: Any new movies on offer for you turtles?

Leonardo: We can't say much, but we're looking at "Drainspotting," "Sewer or You'll Be Sorry," and a re-working of "The Tortoise and the Hare."

(Raphael jumps in the pool.)

Leonardo: Raph, don't lie on your back in that hot sun. We want to do a second season!

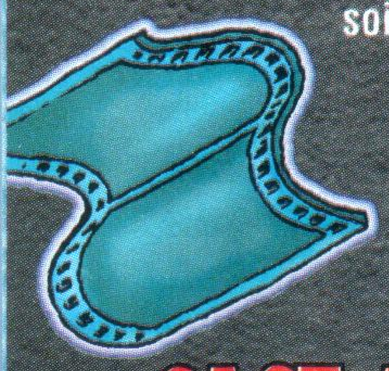

THROW AN EERIE PARTY!

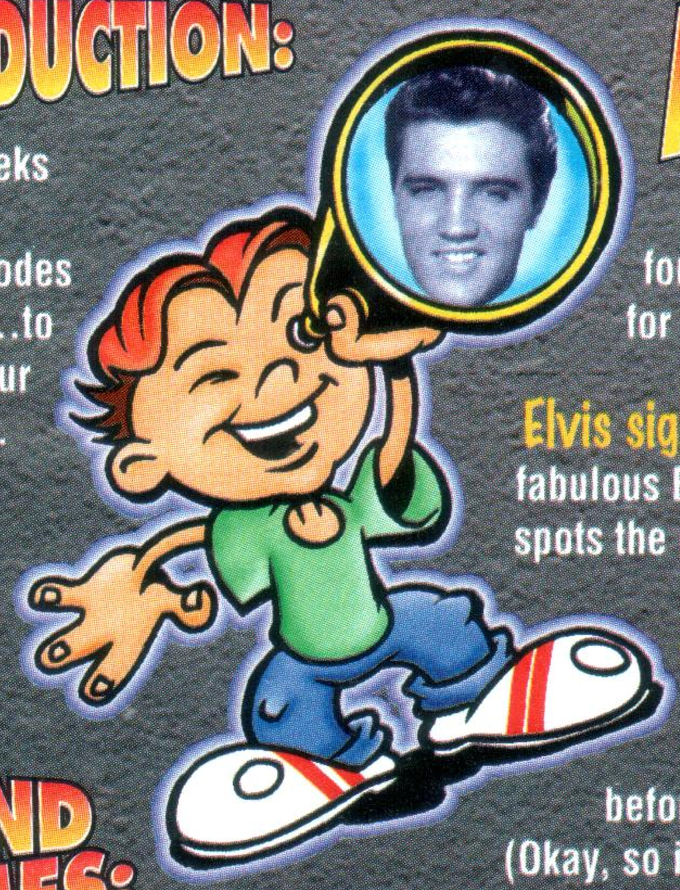

* The HOLLYWOOD sign was originally HOLLYWOODLAND.

Hollywood's coming to your town! That is, as long as your town is Eerie, Indiana. Listen, Babe: Wanna host a gala premiere party that'll really knock 'em dead? Don't just follow the same old script. Take this new direction.

PRE-PRODUCTION:

A few weeks beforehand, start video-taping episodes of Eerie, Indiana...to be screened at your soiree.

CAST AND COSTUMES:

Only big shots allowed at this bash.

Have your guests dress as famous dead stars. But you can become even weirder characters by dressing up as the Mummy (wrap someone in toilet paper), Siamese twins (get two of you in the same big shirt), or the Invisible Man (leave).

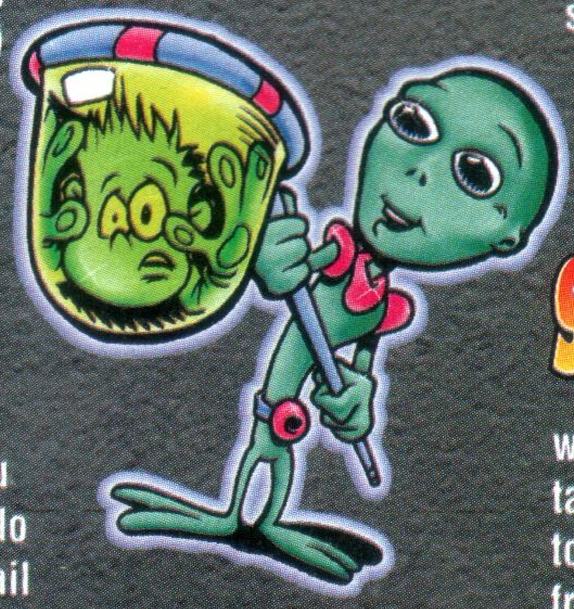

ACTION!

Your stars may be dead, but you don't want your party to be! Give out "Oscars" for best performance (and "Elmos" for worst) in the following activities:

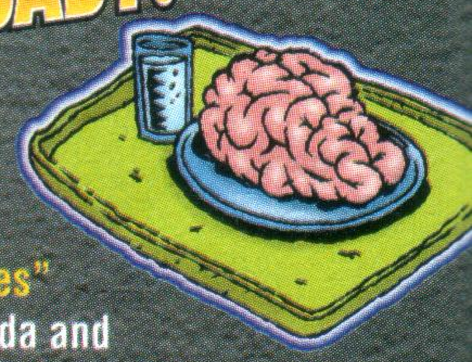

Elvis sightings: Make photocopies of this fabulous Elvis portrait. Hide 'em. Whoever spots the most Kings, reigns supreme.

Alien Abduction: One person gets teleported to a secret alien enclave and the others must search her out before the cranial-experiments begin! (Okay, so it's really just "hide-and-seek.")

Script-writing: Who can tell the best story about the character you're dressed as? Did you REALLY die? Which plastic surgery got you that big break? What do you do with your toenail clippings? Give other "Oscars" (or even "Alfredos" and "Marmadukes," what do WE care?!) for other performances, like scary faces, silly walks, spot welding, and telekinesis.

"CHOW, BABY!"

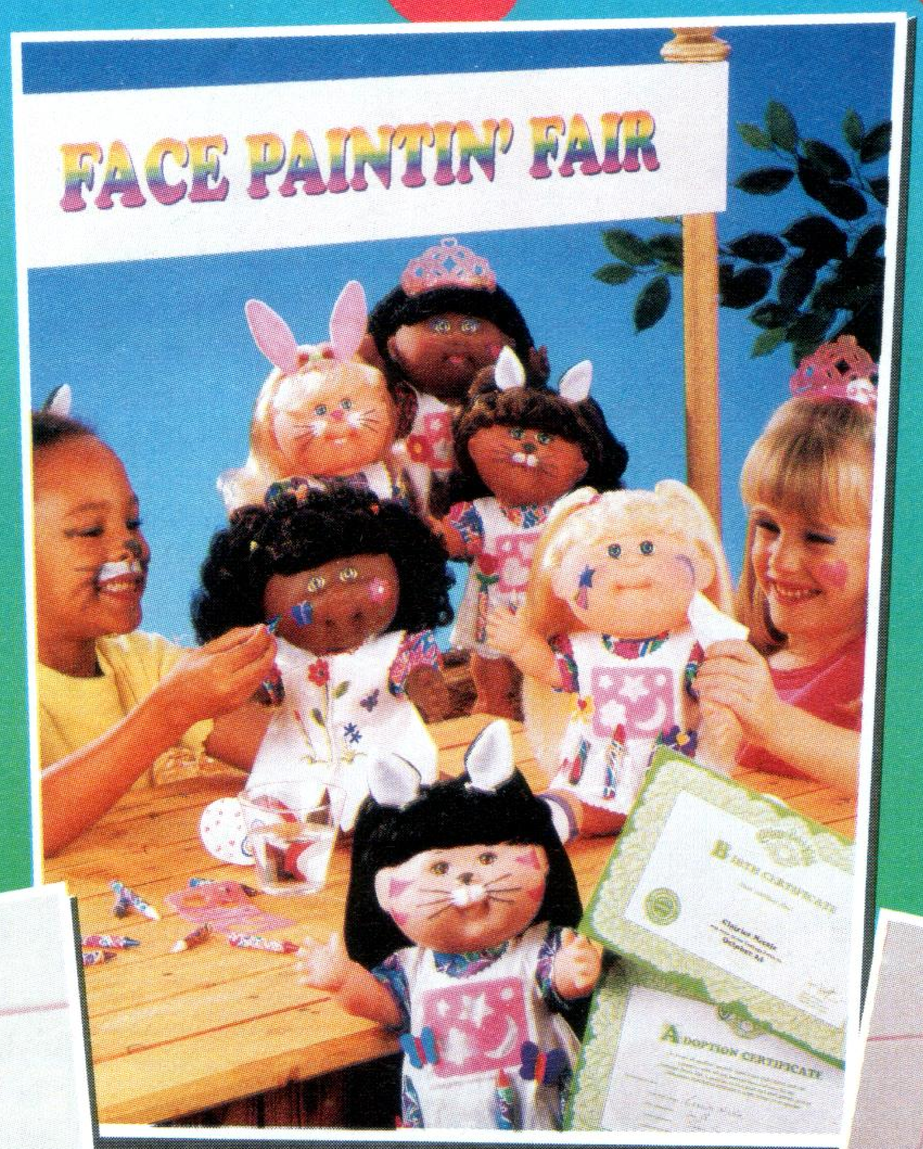

Start off your gala meal with cocktails, like "Shirley Temples" (lemon-lime soda and grenadine) or "Carmen Mirandas" (anything with fruit on top). Then be sure to Eerify the rest. Try "brain paté on the half-shell (bean dip on chips or crackers); gelatin "mold" (serve slimy blackberry or lime finger-jello); "finger" sandwiches (use Vienna sausages). Remember to store all your snacks in Foreverware.®

PRIVATE SCREAMINGS:

Now conclude the affair with a private screening of your pre-taped Eerie, Indiana episodes. (Be sure to serve crunchy snack foods—popcorn, fried termites—whatever is on hand.)

Yes, you can enjoy all the glitter of Tinseltown, Eerie-style, Saturday mornings on FOX KIDS!

HANSON

As any FOX KIDS Countdown listener knows, Hanson was #1 on the pop charts with their hit "MMMBop," and there's no stopping them now. The talented trio has traveled the world, but they stopped to chat with us....

Who do you look up to, musically?

The first stuff we ever listened to was late '50s and early '60s rock 'n' roll: Chuck Berry, Aretha Franklin, Little Richard, Elvis...

What's your favorite food?

We love Mexican food (Tex-Mex).

Do you guys collect anything?

We have a very large extensive collection of Legos. We have four big storage boxes full of them. The castle we're building out of them right now is probably the biggest one we've ever done.

How long does it take you to build a Lego castle?

Generally it takes us about six months. But we haven't had time to finish it lately.

Now the question every girl wants to ask: Do you guys have girlfriends?

No, we don't. We're so busy that it would be kind of hard to have girlfriends. It would be unfair to the girls. We are home for a couple days, then gone for two weeks.

If you could meet anyone, who would it be?

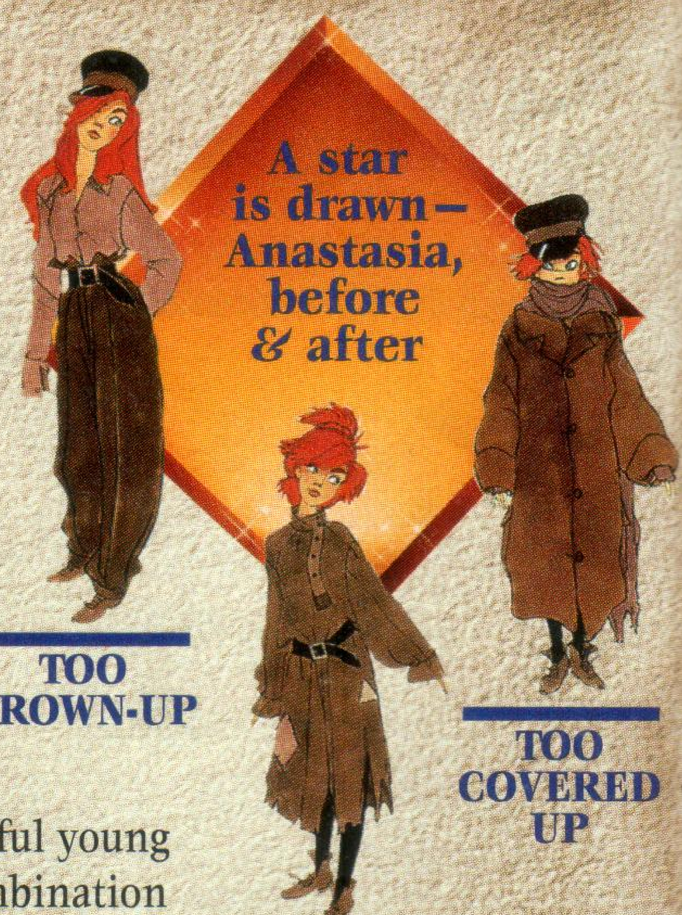

I think somebody we definitely admire is Billy Joel. He's been around for so long and he's done a lot of cool stuff.

Check out the back cover for the FOX KIDS COUNTDOWN station in your town!

A magical mix of action, adventure, comedy, romance, and music, Anastasia is a spectacular full-length animated motion picture about the fabled lost Russian princess—the last surviving member of the Romanov family—and her incredible journey to find her identity. During her one-of-a-kind adventure, Anastasia and her companions must battle the evil sorcerer Rasputin, his sidekick, Bartok the bat, and a band of ghostly minions—all of whom will stop at nothing to complete Rasputin's curse against her family.

ANASTASIA

The creators of the film worked to find a '90s style for the character of Anastasia, while remaining true to the period in which the story is set—the 1920s.

Anastasia's look was designed with Meg Ryan in mind. Her long hair was tied up into a knot to spray around her head for a scruffy orphan look, and let down for her transformation into a beautiful young woman. Her heart-shaped face was designed as a combination of Meg's chin and mouth and Audrey Hepburn's eyes.

Bringing the character to life involved several elements. First, Meg's voice was recorded; then two actresses and a dancer helped the animators by acting out some of the scenes.

About 350,000 drawings were done for the film. Normally, there would be a cel for each drawing, but this film was recorded digitally, and no cels were used. All the drawings were scanned into the computer, cleaned up, effects added, and digitally colored. It took about three hundred artists and technicians over three years to complete the film.

SABAN'S POWER RANGERS TURBO

COSTUME CREEPS

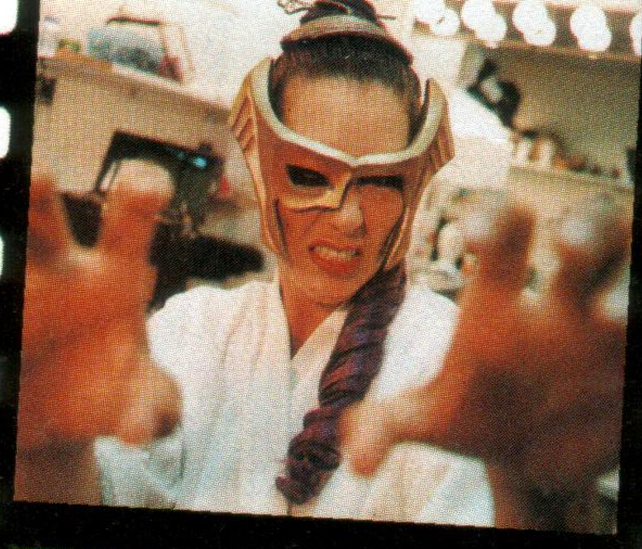

It's tough being a bad guy. If you're the boss, you have to come up with a new scheme every week to take over the world. If you're a minion, you get the constant nagging from the boss, not to mention the frequent clobbering by the good guys.

'Course, it's tough playing a bad guy, too. Hours of make-up, heavy costumes, and the constant nagging from the director. We staked out the set of Power Rangers Turbo, where actors turn into villains.

When Carol Hoyt wakes up at 4:30 a.m., she looks like a normal person, but after about an hour of make-up, dozens of hairpins (to hold the purple ponytail made of real human hair), and slipping into five-inch-heel boots, she becomes the most menacing miscreant to threaten Angel Grove—Divatox!

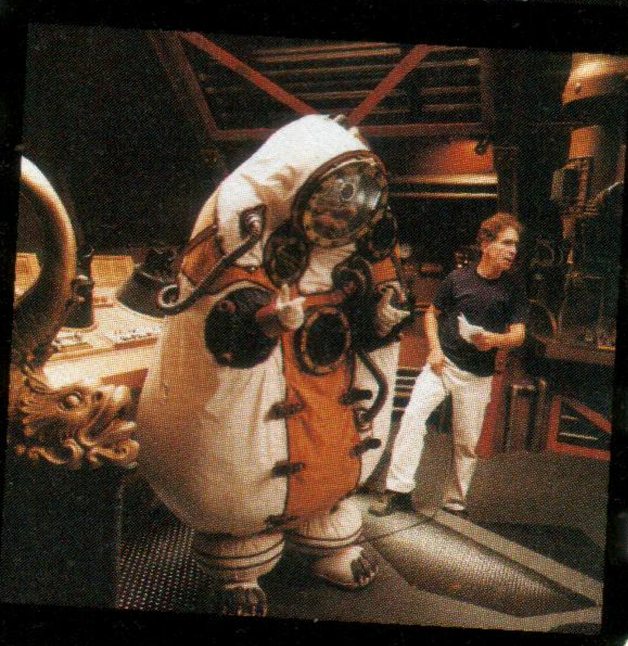

It takes a lot of hard-working behind-the-scenes people to bring these monsters to life. A skilled stuntman, expert animatronics operator, and talented voice actor all contribute to creating the creepy character of Porto.

The Rygog costume below weighs 50 pounds, and can only be worn for a few minutes at a time. Every time a shot is finished, the crew jumps in and "pops the top" so the actor can breathe better (something he enjoys very much).

You wouldn't want to meet this gang in a dark alley—especially after twelve hours of filming. They're probably sore, grumpy, and (peeyuw) really sweaty. Of course, even if you did, you know you'd be safe. After all, there's always the Power Rangers Turbo to the rescue!

Old villains don't die, they just gather dust! Can you name the five baddies of yesteryear below? See page 35 for answers.

Watch Power Rangers Turbo come to the rescue, weekday afternoons on FOX KIDS!

* The average price of a movie ticket in 1940 was 24¢.

Trees Rock!

They give us shade, fruit, and clean air to breathe. But they need our help. No, really! Like in Los Angeles, for every four trees that die, only one tree is replanted. If every American family planted just one tree, it would prevent the formation of more than a billion pounds of greenhouse gasses each year! So, what are you waiting for? Plant a tree!

* Bruce Willis reportedly was paid $10 million to act in Look Who's Talking Too, without ever being on camera.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood!

One neighborhood in L.A., with the Hollywood sign peeking over their shoulders, got together with an organization called TreePeople and planted 30 cassia trees one Saturday morning. The neighbors raised the money, TreePeople brought the tools, and everybody of every age helped! It was a major Hollywood production!

"Everybody helped—the neighbors and volunteers all came to plant our street. Our new trees look so nice!"
—Jeanneese Gillis

"Some neighbors forgot to pre-water their holes, so they were pretty hard to dig. But we worked together and it was fun."
—Ismeal Majano

MAKE YOUR OWN... CLAN-STELLATION

You've heard about Planet Hollywood, right? The place where some of the most famous stars hang out and do their thing. Well, Louie knows he doesn't have to travel far to look at the stars; he's got 'em shining right inside his own house, for crying out loud. If you've seen a Family Tree, then you'll think this Family Constellation Mobile is Ander-sensational!

STELLAR SUPPLIES:

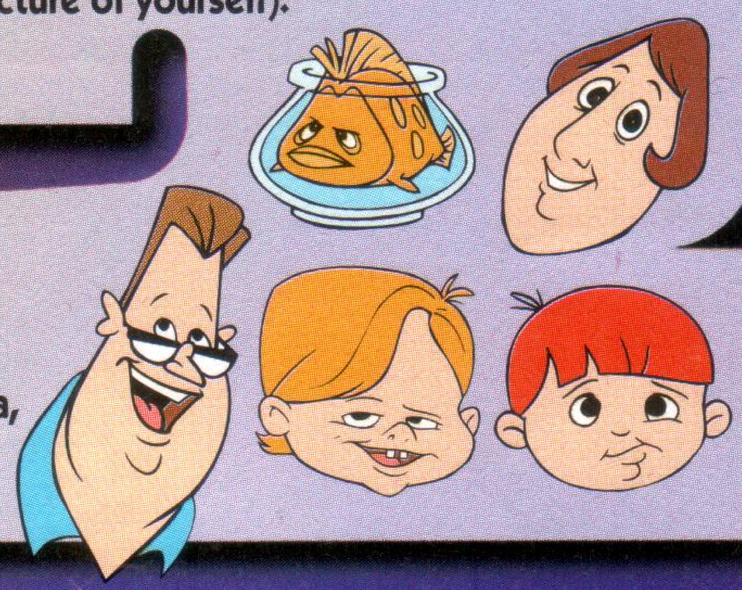

- family photos
- scissors
- ruler
- construction paper
- colored markers
- some stiff cardboard
- glue
- one thick piece of yarn (about two feet long)
- some string of different lengths.

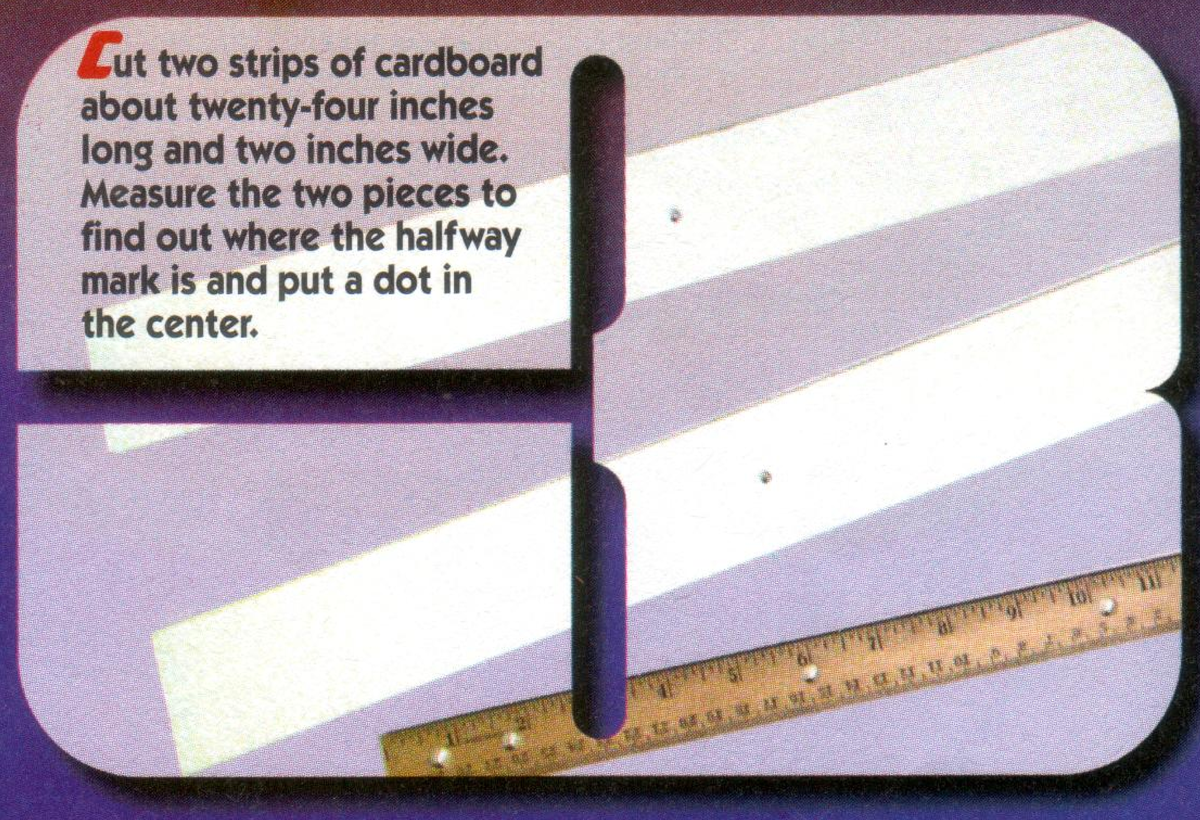

Get pictures of different members of your family going back as far as you can. The idea here is to chart the connection of all your relatives starting from you (so don't forget a picture of yourself).

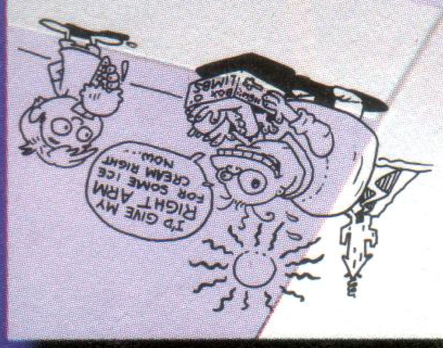

If it's okay with Mom and Dad, cut out the faces in the pictures. So we've got Grandma, Aunt Sylvia, and Pepper, right?

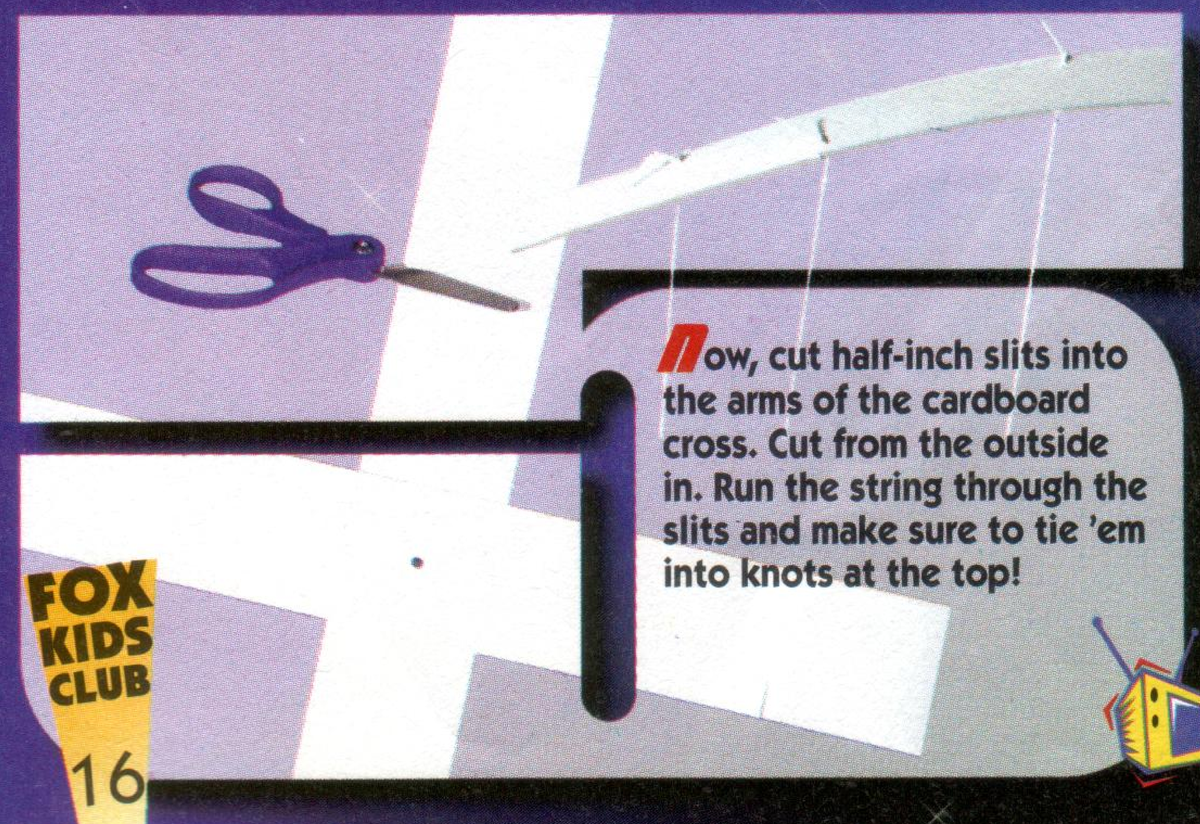

Cut two strips of cardboard about twenty-four inches long and two inches wide. Measure the two pieces to find out where the halfway mark is and put a dot in the center.

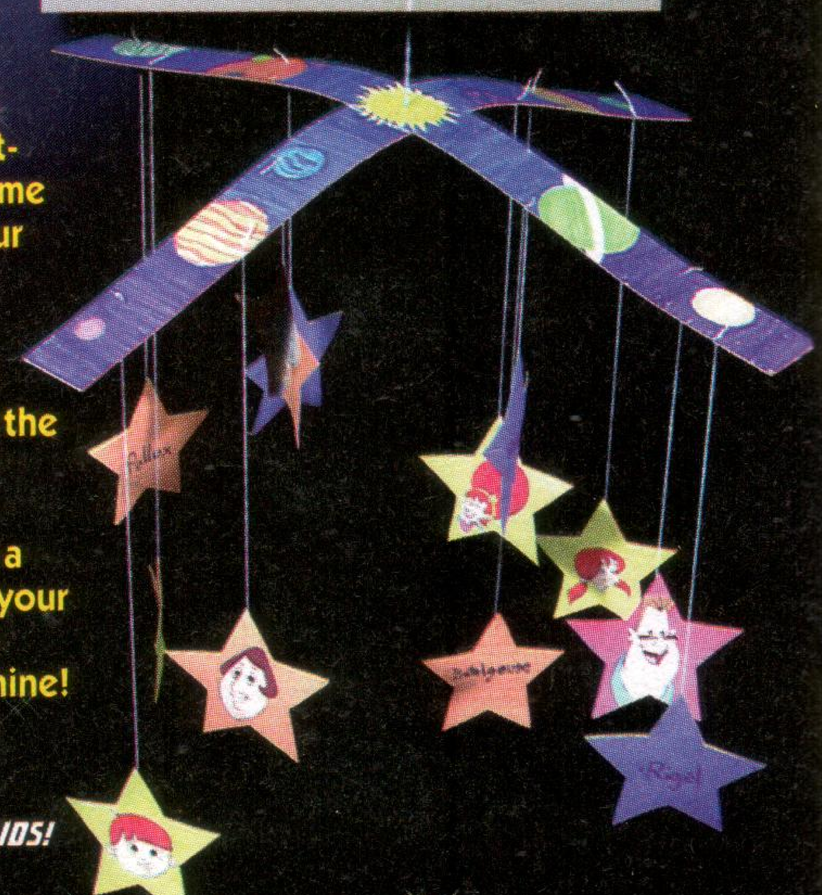

Where the dots are, place one strip over the other, in the shape of a cross, and glue them together. Now, carefully poke a hole in the center (remember the dots?) with the scissors and run your yarn through it. Tie a knot underneath to keep it from sliding through.

Now, cut half-inch slits into the arms of the cardboard cross. Cut from the outside in. Run the string through the slits and make sure to tie 'em into knots at the top!

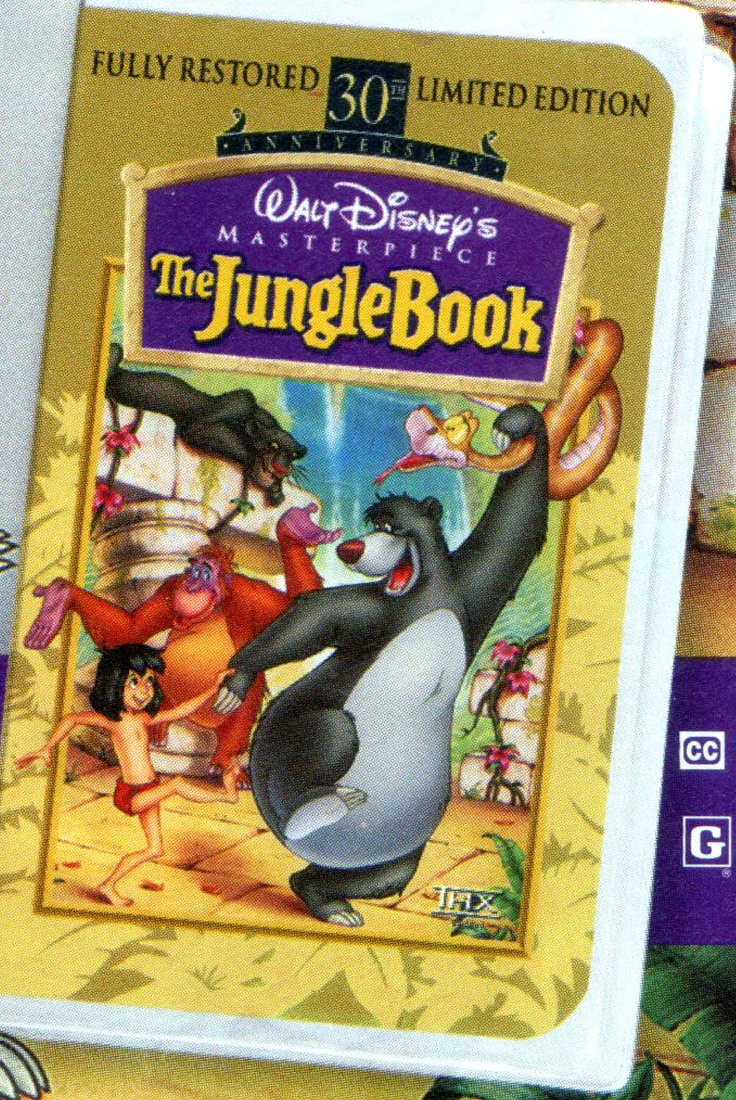

Ready to unleash your cosmic creativity? With your construction paper and markers, draw as many stars as there are family cut-outs. You might want to name them, too. Finally, stick your "stars" together. "Dad, meet the North Star!"

Glue Pop on one side of the string and your star on the other, with strings getting shorter the farther up the family line you go. And it's a one, two, three! Just hang your mobile up and your Family Constellation is ready to shine!

FINISH

To see Les Fortunes' creations come to life, tune in to BeetleBorgs Metallix, weekday afternoons on FOX KIDS!

SABAN'S BEETLEBORGS METALLIX

CREATE YOUR OWN BAD GUY!

* Batman's costume in Batman & Robin weighed 90 lbs. with the cape.

NAME THIS CREATURE!

Send your bad guy's name on a postcard to
"Villain Name," P.O. Box 7771, Burbank, CA 91505.
We'll pick one name and use it in a future episode of BeetleBorgs Metallix!

Les Fortunes. Does the name send shivers up your spine? It should. He's the evil twin brother of Art Fortunes (the guy who draws the BeetleBorgs comic), and the Magnavores have freed him from "protective custody." His drawings are about to come to life and make the BeetleBorgs work even harder than before to keep Charterville safe!

We want you to help this twisted genius (because, hey, we're pretty twisted too). Create a new super villain to menace the BeetleBorgs. Here's how it works. On a separate sheet of paper...

Choose a type for your super-evil bad guy:

1. Robot Built by impossibly brilliant minds to clunk around and break things.

2. Supernatural Maybe a ghost or dragon (or something far creepier—be creative).

3. Ancient Being A prehistoric monster rises to fight again.

4. Mutant Changed by toxic goo into the meanest thing this side of Wolverine.

5. Alien It came from another world to fight our heroes (or maybe just for lunch—guess who's on the menu?).

Next give your bad guy three super powers:

1. Zap Rays Zot! Blast! Splat! Fire, slime, or glue shoots from his fingers.

2. Super Strength He makes the Incredible Hulk look like a wimp.

3. Flies It's a bird, it's a plane, it's a nightmare in the sky.

4. Super Smart Creates futuristic gizmos galore.

5. Super Fast He's greased lightning with fangs.

6. Morphs Has two or more forms to cause that much more mayhem.

7. Armor Regular weapons don't hurt...much.

Now with a villain this tough, you have to give the BeetleBorgs a fighting chance; after all, they are the heroes. Choose one fatal flaw:

1. Clumsy He's big and fast, but he's all thumbs.

2. Follows Orders Has to obey another villain, who might be an idiot.

3. Vulnerability Something like light or hair spray makes him cringe.

4. Crazed Makes really dumb mistakes when he gets angry.

5. Weak Spot A secret weakness that can get him in the end.

Send in your villain drawing and we just might print it in the FOX KIDS Takeover issue: BAD GUY ART, P.O. Box 7771, Burbank, CA 91505. See pg. 35 for details.

GRIN & BARRETT

You can see Casper on FOX KIDS, six days a week!

Like this...

Brendon Ryan Barrett has been acting since he was eight years old, but he really wants to direct! His most recent project lets him act with live-action and computer-generated animation in the direct-to-video release of "Casper, A Spirited Beginning." He'll be starring with all your floating favorites and a couple of all-new ghostly characters!

TFK: Tell us a little bit about the movie.

BRB: It's about a boy named Chris who meets a ghost named Casper and they become really good friends. It's a great movie for kids.

TFK: Obviously there is no real Casper on the set when you're acting. How do you interact with him if you are supposed to be best buddies?

BRB: I have a person who reads Casper's lines and there is a cardboard cutout that I look at, or sometimes they have tapes and they make Casper on them and I look at that. I say my lines to that. It's kind of hard.

TFK: What is Steve Guttenberg like? (The dad in the movie.)

BRB: He's really nice and always makes me laugh. He's really fun to work with — he's a great actor. We don't have the best relationship in the movie. It's kind of hard because we get along great in real life, like best friends; then we start becoming our characters and we have to be dad and son, not friends.

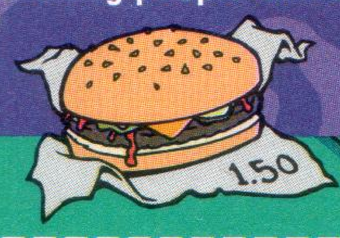

TFK: Do you believe in ghosts?

BRB: Yeah.

TFK: What is the most fun thing about acting?

BRB: Probably working with other actors, making people smile. Mainly you get to see yourself on TV and say, "Hey, that's me!"

CURTIS MARTIN

TFH: What's the best thing about being in the NFL?

CM: It gives me an opportunity to reach out and touch the kids and adults.

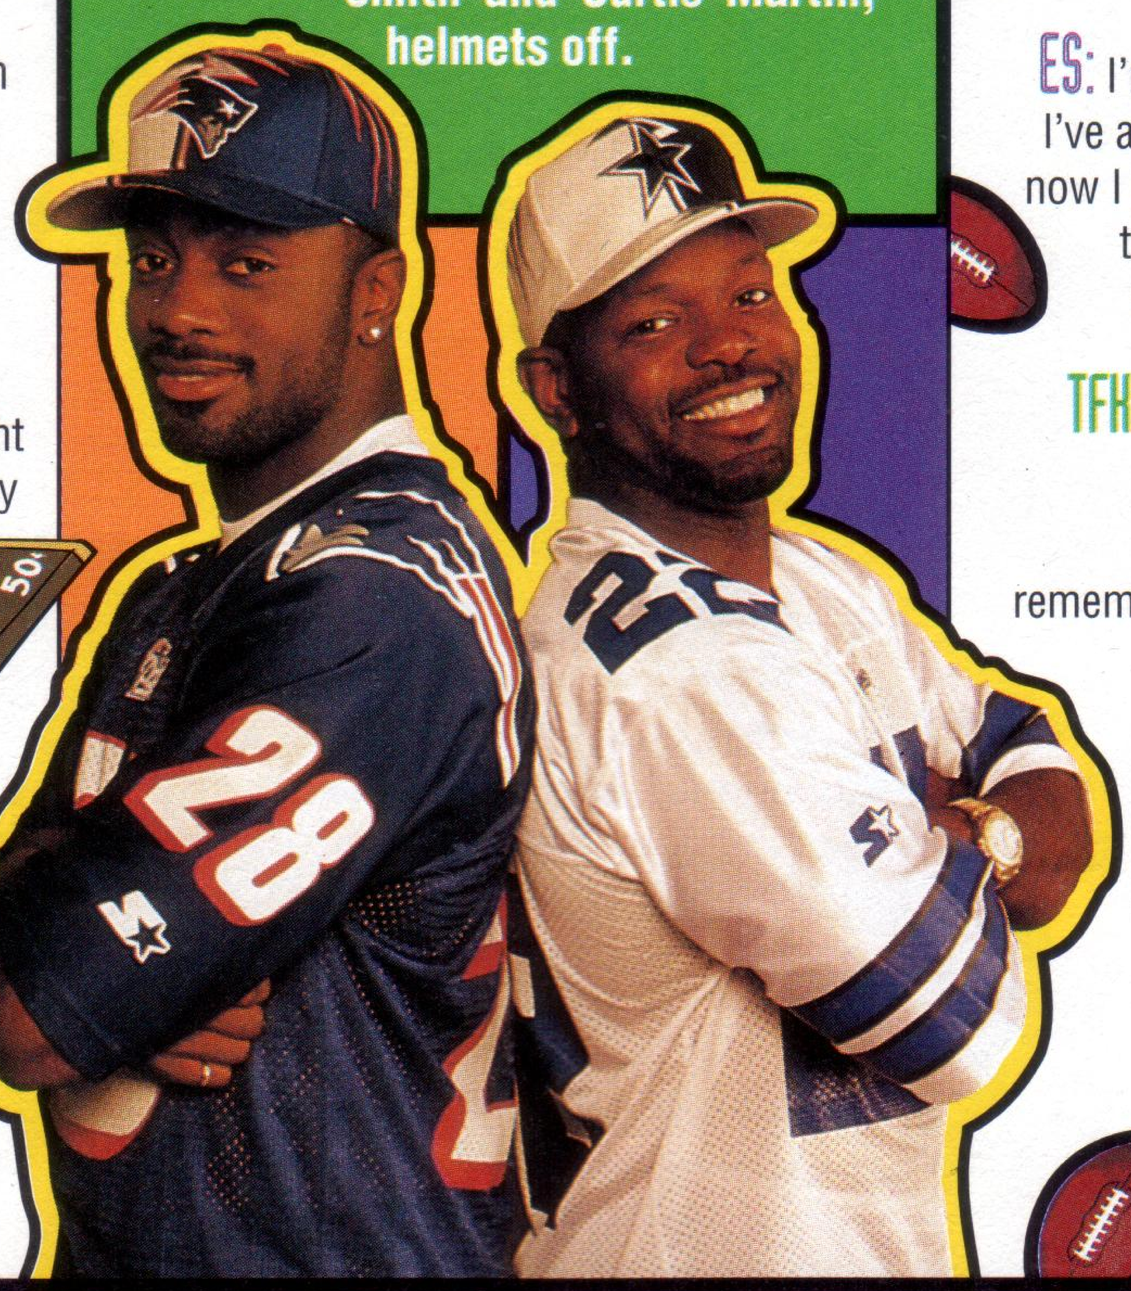

TFH: Say you're with a kid for two minutes, what do you say?

CM: That anything's possible. That if they're focused and if they take the right steps, and put all their heart into it, they can do whatever they want to accomplish. There are no limits. There is no boundary.

TFH: Who's your favorite super hero of all time?

CM: Probably Superman. When I was younger, that was a character I always wanted to be like. I used to think I could go out there and just jump off and fly. I mean, I wasn't crazy, or anything. I just had fun.

With the heavy action kicking off the NFL this fall, you may miss the faces behind the helmets. We took a second to chat with two of the best players in the league, Emmitt Smith and Curtis Martin, helmets off.

EMMITT SMITH

TFH: What's the greatest thing about playing for the Cowboys?

ES: I'm living out a childhood dream. I've always been a Cowboys fan, and now I have the opportunity to play for them. I made it to that level, and that's the greatest thing for me.

TFH: What are your first memories of football?

ES: When I was six or seven, I remember getting the football and just running, and making people miss. Getting a thrill out of making them try to catch me. That's what football was all about for me as a kid, makin' people miss.

TFH: So what's changed?

ES: Nothing. It's still the same old game. That's my point. Still the same game.

FOX KIDS REVIEW WHAT'S NEW!

CRITIQUE

Star Wars: A New Hope, the Special Edition

This was the same as the original Star Wars, with some cool new scenes. There were a couple of scenes in particular that really stood out. One was Docking Bay 93, on Tatooine, between Han Solo and the gangster Jabba the Hut. They used computer graphics to animate Jabba the Hut, and it was neat to see him moving around instead of just sitting in one place, like in the original trilogy. There was also some extra footage of the Jawas, Sand Creatures, and the X-Wing armada that probably would have gone unnoticed if I hadn't seen the original dozens of times! The THX digital surround sound only made things even better!

Tape one was very funny and lifelike. It made me feel good to see Bart defend his little sister, Lisa. I liked the end of the first episode when Bart said war is not good. I also liked when Bleeding Gums and Lisa played sax together. The best part of tape two was when Bart started to speak French, and I liked the way Side-Show Bob's hair looked after being shot out of a cannon. Tape three was a little romantic and very funny. I liked it when Homer picked up Marge.

I thought maybe this was going to be a scary book, like Goosebumps. But even though there was some action and suspense, this book was really more weird than scary. I don't want to ruin the surprises in the book, but one example is sleeping in giant food containers. I liked the book very much. I would tell my friends to read it, too, because I thought it was funny and weird.

SPOTLIGHT ON STEVE PURCELL

The guy who brought Sam & Max to life.

Steve Purcell is the creator of the all-new FOX KIDS cartoon Sam & Max, Freelance Police. He's been drawing them in comic books for years, and now he has sold out and brought them to the small screen. We interrupted him drawing this exclusive cover of FOX KIDS magazine to see if Hollywood has changed him....

TFK: When did you first come up with the Sam & Max characters?

SP: When we were kids, me and my little brother drew our own homemade comics. He'd always leave his unfinished comics lying around and, to make him mad, I'd finish drawing them in a takeoff of his style. Sam & Max started as a parody of the comics of an eight-year-old.

TFK: What's with the rats and giant cockroaches, anyway?

SP: I draw what I see. They're everywhere! GET 'EM OFF ME! Actually they're good to put in the background because you can make them act like people but they're more fun to draw.

TFK: For a kid who has a great idea for a comic book, what advice can you give for becoming a big success, like yourself?

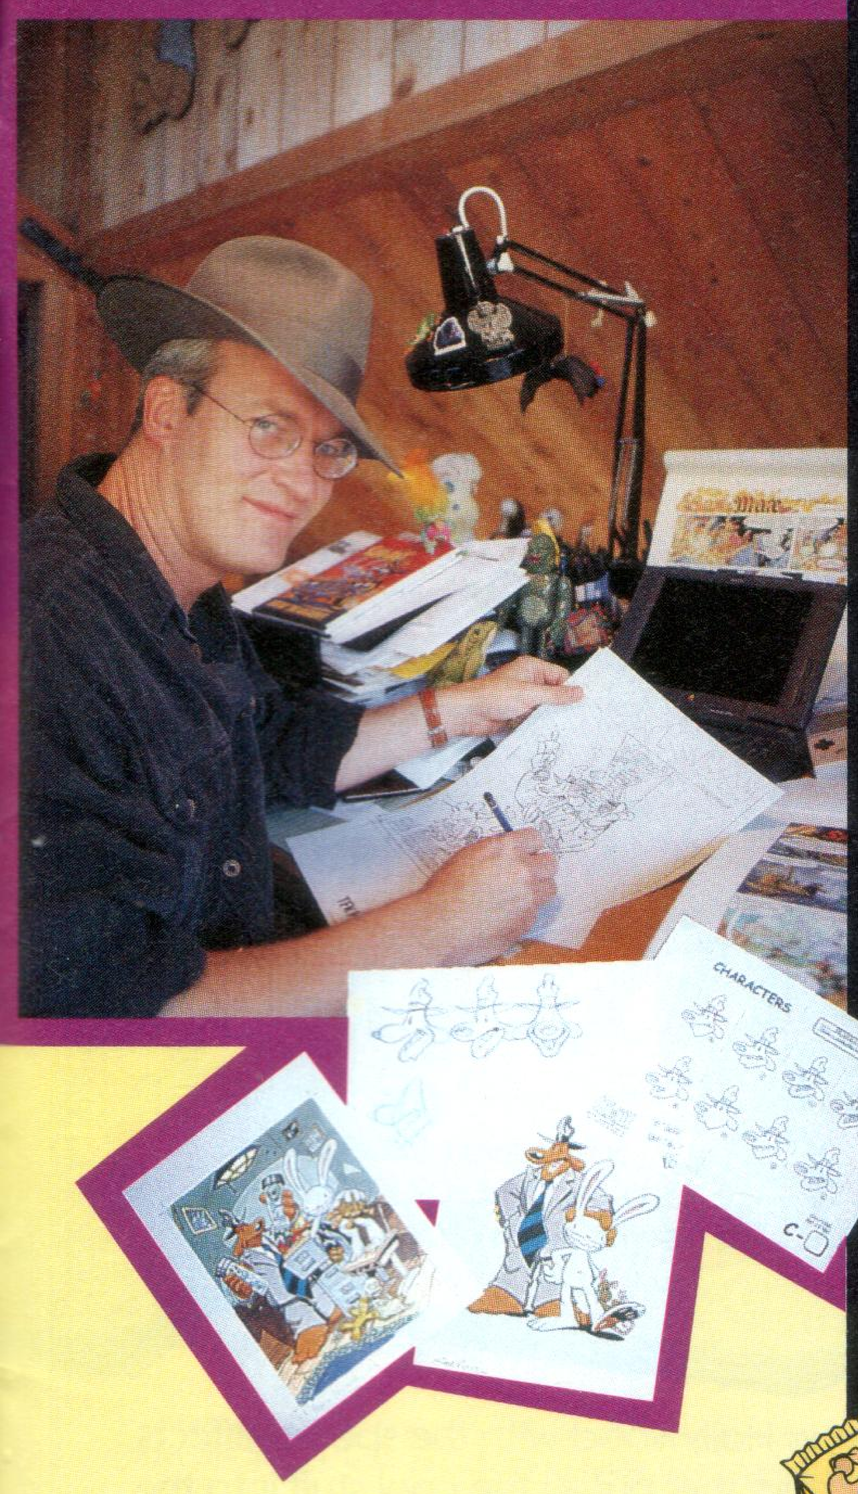

SP: Create something that you really like. Don't try to guess what your audience might want or jump onto the next big fad. You do the best work when you love what you're doing.

TFK: Is it everything you ever dreamed it would be, and more?

SP: It's pretty amazing to have

In 1988, the HOLLYWOOD sign was changed to read FOX, to support the new network.

STUFF!

dozens of creative people working on your very own project, making funny stories that millions of kids will see. But you don't need to have a TV show to feel successful. Sometimes painting something just for myself can be really satisfying.

TFK: Who's the coolest person with whom you have ever "done lunch"?

SP: Mort Drucker, my favorite Mad magazine artist. Smilin' Stan Lee from Marvel Comics.

TFK: When you worked at LucasFilm, did you ever play with a lightsaber?

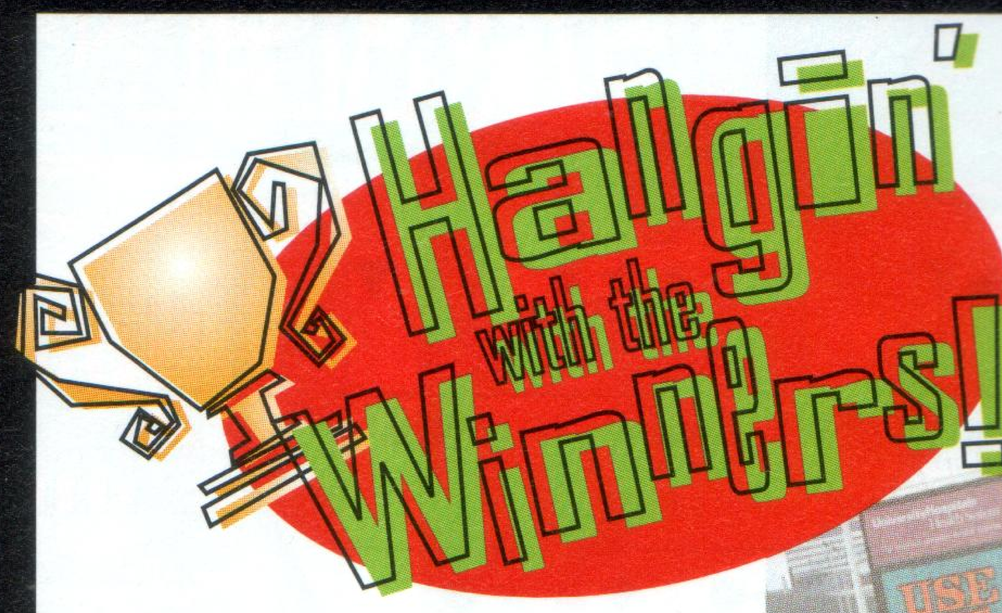

SP: Well, no, but when I was working on an Indiana Jones game I asked the research librarians where the handmade bullwhips for the Raiders movies were made. I sent for one and the first day I got it I accidentally whipped my glasses off. By the end of summer I was able to clip the tops off weeds.

TFK: What's the best thing about your job?

SP: Thinking up weird stuff for a living.
